Mission, Vision, Values

Mission

The mission of the Ruth Nelson Family Foundation is to support the areas of need that reflect the philanthropic interests of Ruth Nelson by nurturing bold ideas, serving urgent needs, and transforming systems to benefit Tulsa.

Vision

We envision a society in which no person is denied shelter, food, physical well-being or access to education and culture because of gender, race, disability, or economic constraint.

Values

Ruth's values continue to guide the Foundation today: humility, wisdom, dignity, education, community, integrity, and opportunity.

Commitment to Tulsa

Focusing support in Tulsa reflects Ruth's belief that meaningful change begins at home. Tulsa is a vibrant hub for arts, education, business, and community innovation. It is also a place where persistent inequities mean many families struggle to achieve long-term economic stability.

Focus Areas

In keeping with Ruth Nelson's long legacy of giving to areas that support economic mobility, RNFF will focus giving in three core areas: affordable housing, women's health, and youth development.

We will also continue to support organizations Ruth faithfully gave to that fall outside of our focus areas through the Founder's Initiative which will be by invitation only.

Founder's Initiative

Support for organizations to which Ruth Nelson consistently and generously contributed.

RNFF Info Session

Founder's Initiative

Ruth supported hundreds of organizations during her decades of philanthropy. She was deeply relational in her work, which drove her to support many organizations with recurring annual gifts. A true civil servant, Ruth's engagement kept her well informed about the people and organizations driving change.

We hope to carry on her legacy of giving by continuing to support a cohort of nonprofits that have deep history with the Foundation but do not fit into our new focus areas. This portfolio is by invitation only.

Ruth Nelson Family Foundation
Info Session Q&A
March 26, 2026

GENERAL

How does RNFF define trust-based philanthropy and how will it guide your processes?

First and foremost, we are driven by listening. We know that the people leading nonprofit organizations are experts in their fields. We then seek to find aligned organizations doing good work, create agreements on how we'll partner to achieve desired results, and provide flexible, multi-year grants where possible.

ELIGIBILITY

Are there geographic restrictions?

Yes. All funded projects must directly benefit the Tulsa community and align with local needs. An organization may be based outside of Tulsa if the funding requested will be used for programs or services in Tulsa.

Do you support faith-based organizations?

The Foundation will consider funding if the faith-based organization does not discriminate service delivery based on personal values, beliefs, identity, and orientation. The Foundation does not support proselytizing or religious instruction.

Are there activities that RNFF cannot fund?

Except in rare circumstances, the Foundation does not sponsor special events such as galas, fundraising events, or tournaments. We do not support lobbying, political campaigns, partisan political activities, proselytizing, or religious instruction.

Does an organization need a minimum annual operating budget?

No

MAKING THE ASK

What is the typical grant size?

Grant sizes will vary based on the scope and potential impact of the project. The Foundation is committed to making meaningful investments that support real progress, rather than limiting funding to a predetermined amount.

How much should an organization ask for?

We will consider any amount, but we are seeking larger average gift sizes. We encourage organizations to ask for what is needed.

Can an organization submit more than one LOI?

Yes. Organizations may submit multiple LOIs, however, our preference would be for organizations to submit a single LOI that explains various funding needs. We seek to be as low-barrier as possible, so the LOI will capture basic organizational information in just a few questions.

If we span more than one of the three focus areas, should we focus on one in the LOI, or should we lift up all areas of alignment?

The LOI form will require you to choose one, but you can explain in the narrative where you overlap in the other areas.

LOGISTICS

When will the LOI link be available?

It is available on our website now.

What is the timeline for funding decisions?

The review process may include multiple stages and follow-up conversations with applicants. Our goal is to make thoughtful, well-informed decisions, rather than rushing the process. LOIs are accepted at any time, and funding decisions are made on a quarterly basis.

Will funding be equally split between the three focus areas?

We do not have specific ranges for the focus areas at this time.

What will reporting requirements look like after an award is made?

Grantee partners will be asked to submit an annual narrative and financial report. Reports will track progress towards goals outlined in the application. There will also be informal check-ins during the year.

Will RNFF commit to multi-year grants this year, or will there be an evaluation period to determine long-term partnerships?

We may do one-year grants for organizations new to RNFF, but our long-term intention is to award multi-year grants.

FUNDING INTERESTS/RESTRICTIONS

Is RNFF interested in funding coalitions and collaborations?

Yes! We strongly encourage collaborative proposals. Partnerships, coalition-building and collective action networks that bring together complementary expertise and address multiple aspects of an issue are viewed as a strength.

Will capacity building be funded?

Yes! We encourage organizations to start by determining if an organizational assessment is needed to determine which capacity support would be most beneficial. If you already know, tell us more about what support would help drive organizational effectiveness. Tell us what you need, and we'll see where we best fit.

Does RNFF anticipate having restrictions on funds being used for advocacy and/or lobbying?

We are not able to fund efforts to change legislation, support voter registration, or promote individual candidates. However, we can support organizations seeking to expand their advocacy efforts.

Will you consider endowment gifts?

We are not currently funding endowments. We will share more if this evolves.

FOCUS AREAS

What types of housing projects will RNFF fund? Will rental assistance and eviction prevention be included?

RNFF supports housing projects that increase the supply, preservation, or accessibility of affordable housing in Tulsa for low and moderate-income households. We are particularly interested in projects that can create lasting, scalable impact by addressing the systemic challenges in the local housing landscape, but we also seek to support families living at or near the poverty line in their ability to stay housed.

Under Youth Development and in particular education, is there a priority age group that RNFF seeks to serve?

We are currently focused on K-12 with a heavy emphasis on K-8.

If we don't fit in the three focus areas, but are one of the programs that Ruth regularly supported, is there something we should do at this time?

No, there is nothing to do right now. We are working with our trustees to identify which of these organizations will receive invitations to apply.

What types of safety-net clinics will you focus on?

We are first and foremost focused on access. This includes everything from prenatal to postpartum care. In addition to availability, we would like to see culturally competent services and providers.

Do you support mental health initiatives?

Mental health touches many areas. RNFF is focused on our three primary issue areas of affordable housing, women's health, and youth development. If your organization sees strategic alignment with these issues and our goals, submit an LOI.
